

Once I had typeset everything and was happy with how it read and looked, I filmed myself physically removing the unnecessary words.

This process is meant to show viewers how to navigate the wordy information.

I wanted it to be more dynamic than just reading the poster by itself but in hindsight I can see that this approach was quite distracting and took away from the message.

Physically seeing my arm and hand adds a human element to the information. It shows my autonomy over the information provided, I'm regaining control and manipulating it the way I want.

Tape is the best <3

A system and method for determining a mood for a crowd is disclosed. In example embodiments, a method includes identifying an event that includes two or more attendees, receiving at least one indicator representing emotions of attendees, determining a numerical value for each of the indicators, and aggregating the numerical values to determine an aggregate mood of the attendees of the event.

A system and method for determining a mood for a crowd is disclosed. In example embodiments, a method includes identifying an event that includes two or more attendees, receiving at least one indicator representing emotions of attendees, determining a numerical value for each of the indicators, and aggregating the numerical values to determine an aggregate mood of the attendees of the event.

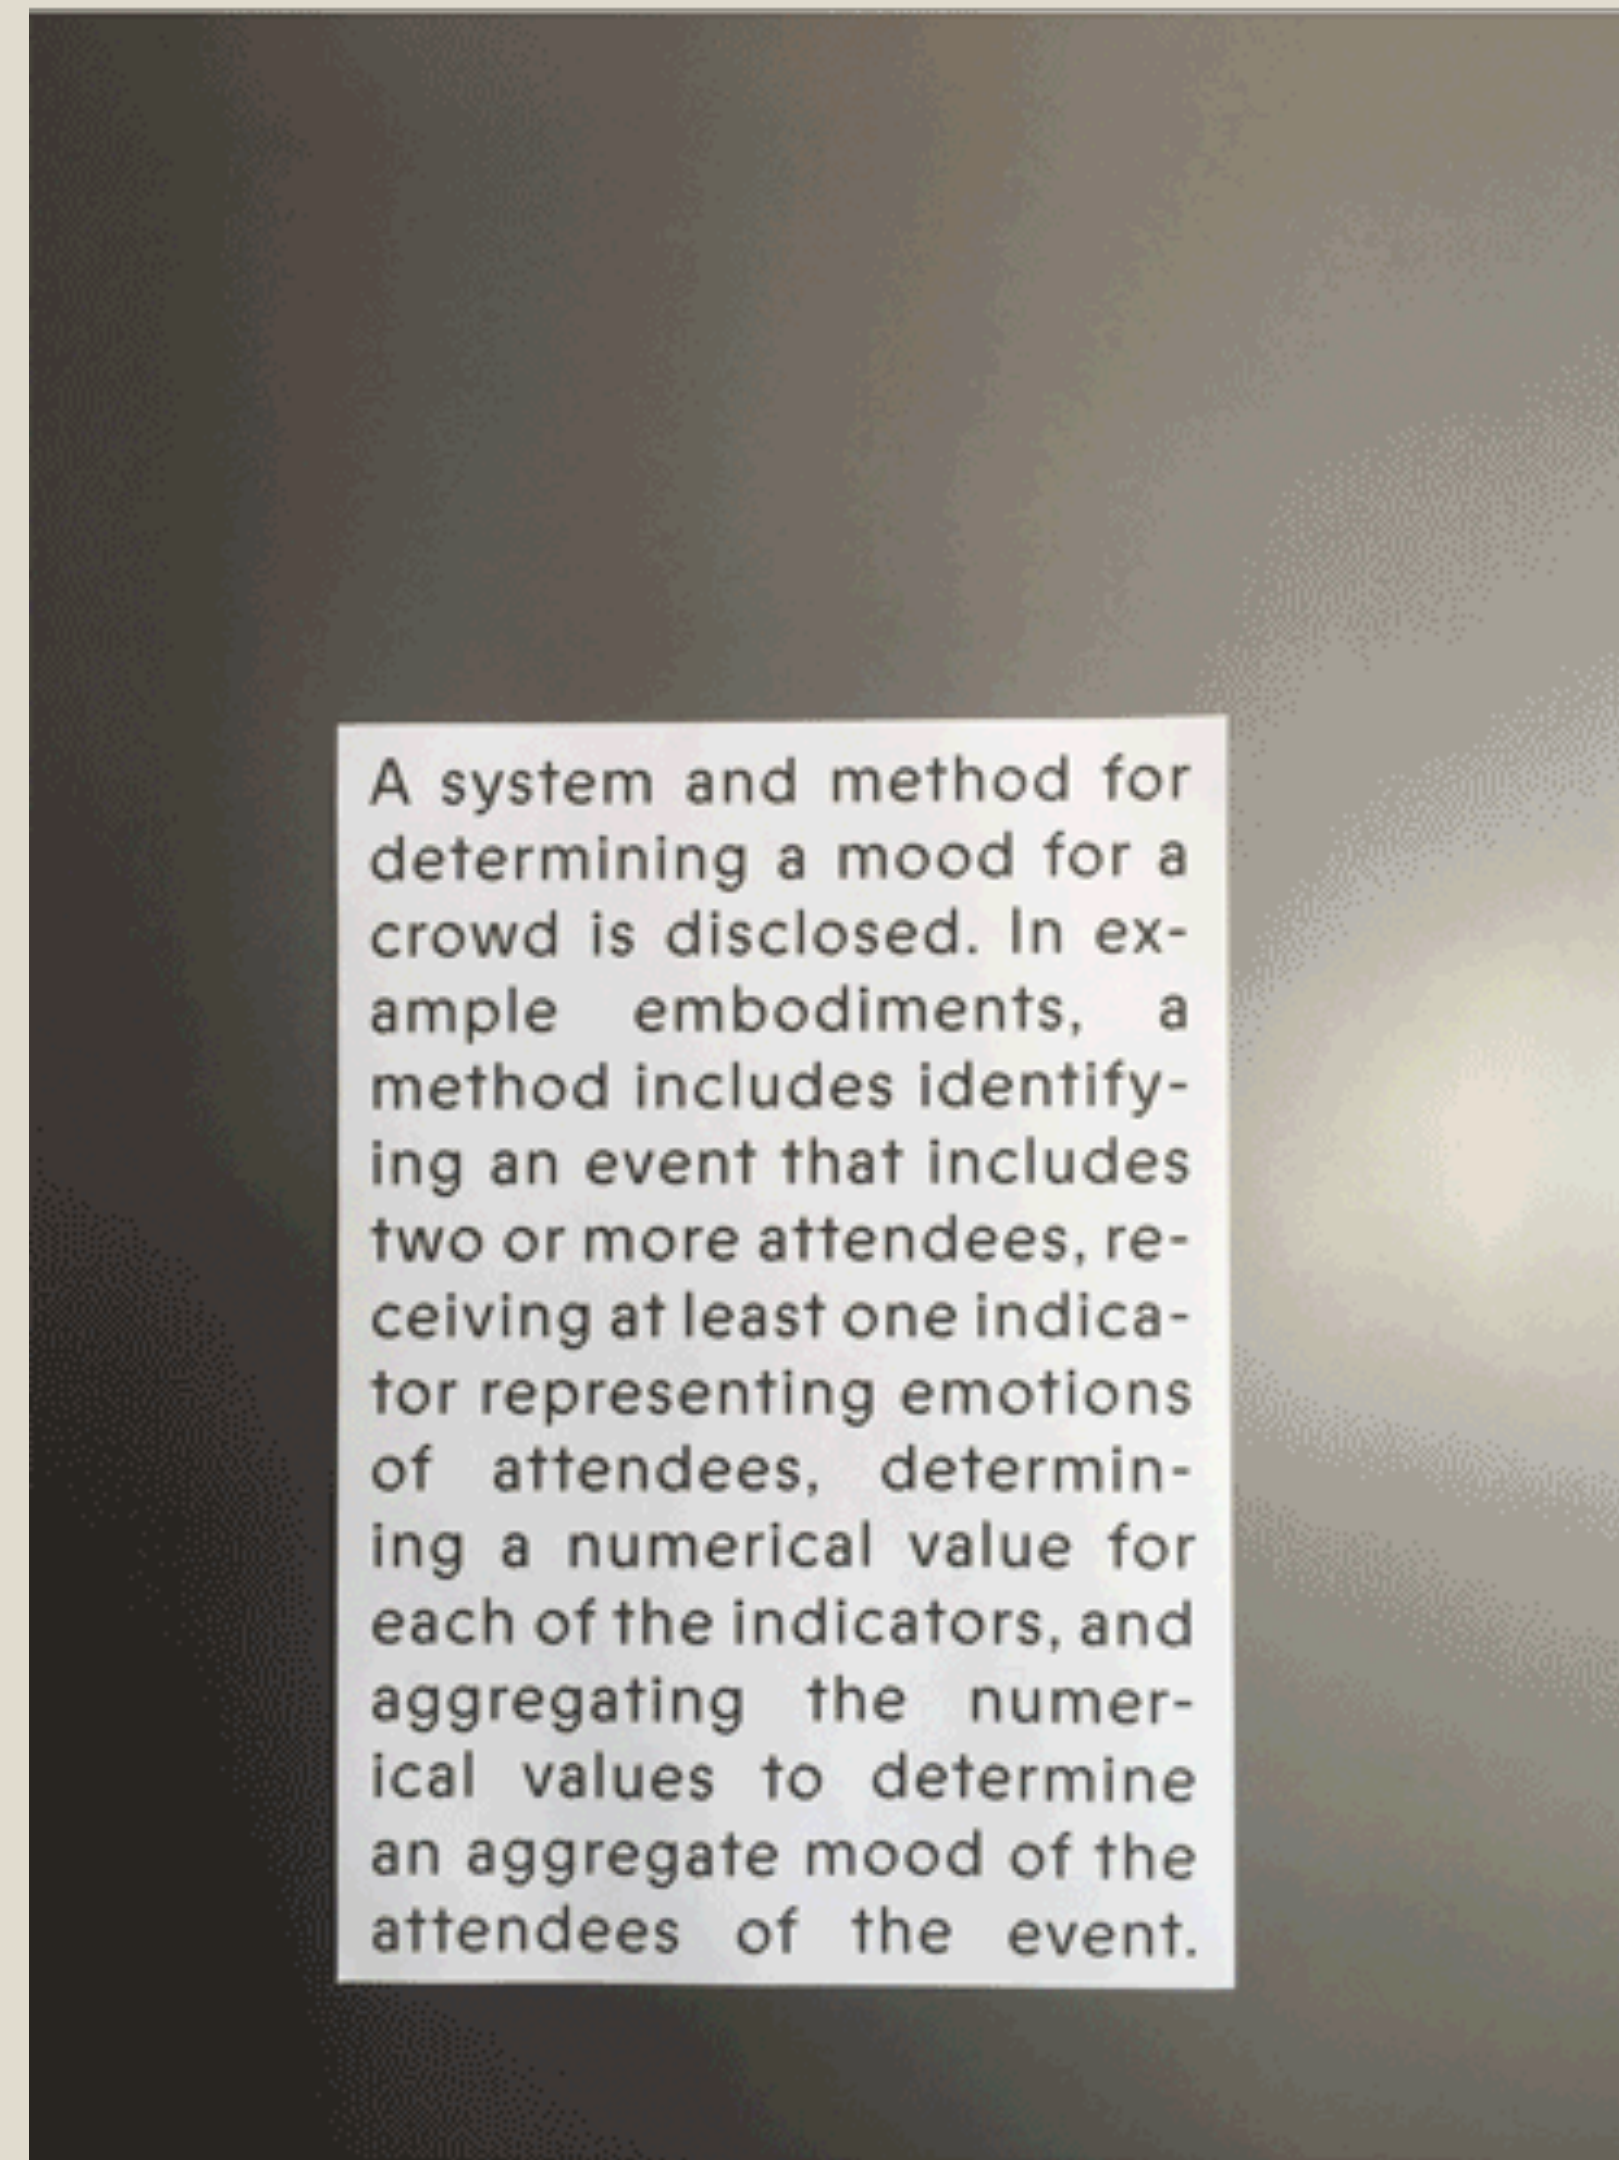

Once I had typeset everything and was happy with how it read and looked, I filmed myself physically removing the unnecessary words.

This process is meant to show viewers how to navigate the wordy information.

I wanted it to be more dynamic than just reading the poster by itself but in hindsight I can see that this approach was quite distracting and took away from the message.

Physically seeing my arm and hand adds a human element to the information. It shows my autonomy over the information provided, I'm regaining control and manipulating it the way I want.

Tape is the best <3

Turned my hands on process into some gifs.

The scribbling of words indicates that you don't need to read all of them but at the same time the scribbling is quite distracting. It detracts from what matters, which is the sentence that is left to be read.

A system and method for determining a mood for a crowd is disclosed. In example embodiments, a method includes identifying an event that includes two or more attendees, receiving at least one indicator representing emotions of attendees, determining a numerical value for each of the indicators, and aggregating the numerical values to determine an aggregate mood of the attendees of the event.

A system and method for determining a mood for a crowd is disclosed. In example embodiments, a method includes identifying an event that includes two or more attendees, receiving at least one indicator representing emotions of attendees, determining a numerical value for each of the indicators, and aggregating the numerical values to determine an aggregate mood of the attendees of the event.